connecticut school of integrative manual therapy

Less pain More activity The IMT Wellness Center has a team of highly skilled practitioners specializing in Physical Therapy, Integrative Manual Therapy, nutritional wellness and support, Chiropractic, Naturopathic and Osteopathic principles and theories and Biochemistry specialists. A comprehensive evaluation and a customized treatment program is developed exactly to each patient's needs. CSIMT is authorized by the Department of Higher Education in the State of Connecticut. It is a three year program designed for the working professional. Following completion of the diploma program, graduates are eligible to sit for certification and become Certified IMT practitioners. Board Certification ensures that I'm directly connected to the progressive evolution of our profession. Jill Kristin Berkana, LMT, BCTMB Professionals RECOGNIZE and RESPECT Board Certification. It symbolizes commitment, dedication, and expertise. Massage therapists who are Board Certified have gone above and beyond licensure—they have achieved more than minimum requirements. You can expect more from professionals who chose to become Board Certified. Susan Salvo, EdD, LMT, BCTMB I chose to become Board Certified because I'm proud to be a massage therapist—and I wanted to let the world know how much I love this profession. I've done so much in my career, and I wanted to elevate myself to the next level. Ryan Hoyme, BCTMB Massage Nerd Board Certification is the closest thing we have to a national credential. Our field is in a time of great transition, and I am eager to be part of the solution. NCBTMB is in a position to help massage therapy mature into a wellrespected profession—That's why I choose Board Certification. Ruth Werner, BCTMB An educator for many years, I design classes with innovative concepts and teaching strategies. Above all, though, that starts with doing what's right for our profession. That's why I encourage all massage therapists to become Board Certified.<https://ashcroftcreative.com/images/97-isuzu-hombre-manual-transmission-fluid.xml>

It is the right thing to do to advance both your career and the value of massage therapy. Sandy Fritz, BS, MS, BCTMB It's about holding oneself accountable in an evergrowing, everchanging and everdemanding health care system of which I am proud to say we are all a part of. I highly encourage others to consider their part and choose a career pathway of professionalism—CHOOSE BOARD CERTIFICATION. Near me 40 miles. It is used to correct the structural integrity of the body which will lead to positive functional outcomes. Dysfunction or disease initiates when the structure becomes taxed and there is a lack of flow within a certain system. As an IMT practitioner, I can determine which system in the body is involved i.e. circulatory, lymphatic, nervous, etc. and use particular techniques to restore vitality and function to that system. These techniques are extremely gentle and noninvasive and the patient remains fully clothed at all times. A holistic approach means I assess and treat the body as a whole. An extensive history is taken noting that minor impacts throughout the years can cause symptomatology over time. Ultimately, my goal is to find the underlying cause of pain and dysfunction rather than chasing symptoms. IMT was developed by Sharon GiammatteoWeiselfish Ph.D, PT over thirty years ago when she was on a mission to help her children. She took additional courses in Osteopathic Medicine and Chiropractic Medicine and blended manual therapy techniques into her own form which is still practiced today by many therapists. If you are interested in learning more about IMT, please visit Manual Therapy Seminars to see where there may be a class near you. I do understand that locating an IMT practitioner may not always be simple. There are a couple of options for you. There is a team of therapists in

Bloomfield, CT that continue to see clients who are willing to travel. <https://www.datgrocerydelivers.com/MI/userfiles/97-jeep-cherokee-factory-service-manual.xml>

We can accommodate an intensive like experience for you which means condensing your treatment time and being seen by multiple therapists. We would also be open to traveling to you given the appropriate circumstances. Please contact me for more information. Start your healing Our first meeting together will include a comprehensive medical history, an examination and treatment time. I am always accepting new patients and I look forward to talking with you. Book an appointment About Me I wanted to discover how to help these conditions, as well as learn to prevent them. Being raised in Saratoga Springs, NY, I decided to attend college close by at the University of Hartford. There I received my Bachelor of Science in Physical Therapy and performed 3 affiliations, one in orthopedics, one in neurology and the last one at Center IMT Integrative Manual Therapy with Sharon WeiselfishGiammatteo, the founder of IMT. Under the wings of Sharon, I fell in love with IMT and knew it would be my journey to help others heal with hope. I opened Center IMT in Deerfield Beach, FL in 2001. Eventually, I moved to the metro DC area where I worked at Center IMT DC for two years. My journey then led me to Connecticut where my PT career began at University of Hartford. I continued to work with the team of IMT therapists through 2018. In 2018, the owner of our practice, Ayelet, decided to expand her health journey with a different approach. This led me and the other PT's who practiced with her to become sole practitioners. However, we remain extremely collaborative on all fronts. While working in Bloomfield, I reside in West Hartford, with my husband, Brian, and my two sons, Liam and Layne. They are heavily involved in the community with sports, and we enjoy watching them grow. Education University of Hartford B.S.

, Physical Therapy, 1999 CT School of Integrative Manual Therapy Certified in Integrative Manual Therapy, 2004 Testimonials Her work is exceptional and I have been blessed to have found her. She is skillful, perceptive, wise and knowledgeable in her field of work. Integrative physical therapy has changed my life and helped me to heal on many levels. Integrative Manual Therapy is a unique set of techniques, approaches, and methodologies that address pain, dysfunction, disease and disability. IMT is best described as a health care process. IMT encompasses a wide range of health care practices. It achieves health and healing by taking into account the diverse systems of the human body and addressing dysfunction at the cellular level. Back in physical therapy school, it seemed that we were being taught how to make patients accept the health challenges they were facing, rather than being taught how to fix their health challenges. Although I appreciated the training I received in physical therapy school, I left feeling that there was so much more we could do for patients. I had friends who were training in other health professions and I knew that there was more information to be learned. As soon as I was out of school, I started taking as many classes as I could in order to find the answers I was looking for.

Integrative Manual Therapy IMT is a combination of thousands of techniques and represents a huge step forward in manual therapy care. Often, when receiving treatment, patients want to know exactly what I am doing and why, and IMT gives me the ability to answer those questions. How long have you been a physical therapist. Lisa I've been a physical therapist since 1995. After I graduated from physical therapy school, I became dissatisfied with the methods I had been taught. I wanted a deeper, more comprehensive way of treating patients. Most physical therapy focuses on restoring function to an area without addressing why there are issues in the first place. I wanted a therapy that would look for the why and address the root causes of the problems. In 1997, I discovered Integrative Manual Therapy IMT, and I was really impressed with the results I saw from the treatment. I became a certified IMT practitioner in 2002 and I opened the CenterIMT office in DC as a satellite of the Institute for Integrative Manual Therapy in Connecticut. Five years later, I started Total Health Physical Therapy in Washington, D.C. I've also taught IMT classes throughout the US, Israel, Hong Kong, and Chile, and I was the founding President of the Board of The Integrative Manual Therapy Association. What training did you need for IMT. Lisa IMT is a very sophisticated treatment method and it requires a great deal of training. The basic IMT credential program through the Institute for IMT in Connecticut requires 32 classes and I estimate that I've taken closer to 100 classes of IMT training. During my training, I was lucky to be mentored by Sharon Giammatteo, founder of the treatment. My background is in traditional physical therapy and I worked in practically every traditional PT setting before I chose to specialize in IMT. This background gave me a thorough knowledge of anatomy and physiology. How does IMT work, exactly.

Lisa IMT focuses on removing mechanical strains from every tissue, in order to get the body working the right way. The philosophy behind IMT is that your body works correctly unless something happens to damage it — something that keeps it from working properly. Function follows structure. Behind every problem in the body, there has to be a mechanical or anatomical issue. IMT uses manual therapy to remove the strain accumulated from past injury, infection, and inflammation. There are over 20,000 techniques in IMT — one for every system in your body. As IMT practitioners, we are trained to use our hands to feel what's happening in the fascia and determine what the problem is. Human hands are extremely sensitive and when they've been trained, they become phenomenal diagnostic and treatment tools. With IMT, we discover the root of the patient's problem and treat the cause, not the symptom. Techniques are really gentle and fix the issue without causing more trauma. We can make a permanent change in someone's health by fixing old trauma. What kinds of patients do you work with. Lisa My patients are people who are seeking an alternative to traditional physical therapy and are looking for a progressive, fullbody approach to care. We also treat people who have tried everything else and are desperate for relief. Since IMT treats all tissues in the body, our treatment goes beyond typical physical therapy services. We treat injuries and trauma, neurological disorders, and a host of other issues. Our patients are open to the idea that our treatment can help them with many types of issues. How much does this cost. Every session is different, since it is entirely dependent on the needs of each client. While we don't take insurance, we have someone onsite who can submit to insurance companies to help our patients get reimbursed. What can I expect if we work together. Lisa If we work together, you can expect that our total focus will be on you and your needs.

Every treatment is different because every client is different. We will delve into the root of the problem and we care enough to ask the right questions and lots of them. Since IMT is based on carefully tailoring treatment to each patient, we are the very definition of personalized care. How do we get started. Lisa We start by asking each patient to fill out a detailed medical history form prior to our first session. The form provides insight so we can better determine what past medical issue might be causing the present problem and how best to approach treating and healing each patient. We are offering inperson sessions and telehealth video PT sessions. Keeping you and our other patients healthy is our top concern. Scouring the web at all hours of the night wasnt gonna cut it. RocketReach has given us a great place to start. Our workflow has solid direction now we have a process in place the begins with RocketReach and ends with huge contact lists for our sales team.it probably saves Feedtrail about 3 months of work in terms of lead gathering. We can divert our attention to actually going after the customer now! I loved the ability to determine personal emails from virtually anyone on the web with RocketReach. I was assigned a project recently that regarded public relations, partnership, and outreach responsibilities and RocketReach not only connected me to prospective individuals but allowed me to streamline my search approach on the basis of location, skill set, and keyword. But it was frustrating for us to have to wait for people to accept our connection requests if they accepted them at all and sending is too expensive. This was a major speed bump in our workflow and source of never ending frustration. With the sheer number of contacts we've been able to find using RocketReach, the platform has probably saved us nearly five years worth of waiting. Both in the scope of the searches, and in the number of accurate emails found, I find it surpasses others.

I also like the layout, which is easy on the eye, more attractive and efficient. The bottom line is that it has been an effective tool in my work, as a nonprofit reaching out to leadership. The most frustrating part was how time consuming this all was. The first time I used RocketReach was when I realized I made the right decision. Finding emails for contacts turned into a one-and-done instead of a week-long process. When I tried RocketReach and to find business information about key people in seconds in an easy and seamless process, I was hooked. The tool reduced the time to connect with new prospects by close to 90%. Find prospects, develop your lists, and track your marketing campaigns without even having to leave the RocketReach suite. Find the most crucial people you need to bring your product to with our advanced search features and then immediately take action, leaving your competition in the dust. Search and discover companies that match the right target criteria. With RocketReach, you'll find the right customers while gaining key insights into current company data and statistics. Then with your lookups you and your team can easily start engaging with customized outreach campaigns and more. With our advanced search, you and your team can quickly nail down the strongest prospects and ensure that you're going to find the best fit. Reach out directly with realtime validated email and phone numbers, and take it to the next step by creating personal and reusable email templates that integrate with your existing email provider. Organize your contacts with fully customizable lists and integrate with your existing CRM or ATS for seamless workflow. Learn about your hires behavior and see who's opened, clicked, and replied to these emails all within the RocketReach platform included in every plan. Our data is constantly growing, always providing you with the freshest and most up-to-date leads. Connecticut School of Integrative Manual Therapy's campus is at Bloomfield, CT.
